

Dublin Outing

We hired a minibus and a brave posse made their way to Dublin Zoo in torrential rain. However, once we arrived, the rain stopped and, shortly before we left, the sun made an appearance. Many of us gathered in the Porterhouse for lunch and in the afternoon we shot street photographs in the Templebar area.

Top row is the posse, middle row shows the caged animals and bottom row is the zookeeper taking a human for his daily exercise. Please don't feed the animals! ☺
